Underrepresented Minority Visiting Clerkship Scholarship in Maternal-Fetal Medicine

What is the Visiting Clerkship Scholarship Program?
This scholarship program supports a 4th year medical student for a 4-week visiting clerkship in obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. The scholarship is available in amounts of up to $2000 to cover tuition, housing and living expenses associated with the visiting elective.

Who is eligible for the program?
Medical students from an underrepresented minority population interested in pursuing a career in obstetrics and gynecology (including African Americans, Hispanic Americans, Native Americans, Alaskan Natives, Native Hawaiians, and other Pacific Islanders) are eligible. Additionally, applicants must be:
- Current students in good academic standing at a LCME-accredited medical school in the United States entering their fourth-year of medical school
- U.S. citizens or permanent residents

How do interested students apply?
Interested students are required to submit a one page personal statement, a curriculum vita, three letters or recommendation from physicians familiar with their work, and medical school transcripts by May 15, 2012. For detailed application information including the course description and rotation guidelines, contact:

Dr. Theresa Duello at tmduello@wisc.edu or 608-262-7456
www.obgyn.wisc.edu/MFMscholarship

When is the Clerkship available?
The Maternal-Fetal Medicine clerkship is offered in November. The individual awarded the scholarship will also have the opportunity to interview for the Obstetrics and Gynecology Residency Program during the elective.

www.obgyn.wisc.edu/MFMscholarship